Memory

Show memory

reset history

RAG Chat Assistant

Can you suggest a cruelty-free brand with products designed for acne-prone skin?

Based on the information provided, here are some suggestions:

1. Eveline Cosmetics
   - They offer products designed for acne-prone skin without animal testing.
   - Example: Perfect Skin .acne (Exfoliating Mask 3-in-1) and Perfect Skin .acne (Deep-Cleansing Gel). These are vegan, suitable for oily, problematic, or combination skin, and help with exfoliation, pore-minimizing, and sebum regulation.
2. BasicLab
   - They also do not conduct animal testing and offer products for acne-prone skin.
   - Example: Cosmetology Esteticus (Gentle Serum to Treat Skin Imperfections). This vegan serum is designed for oily and acne-prone skin, regulating sebum production, reducing pores, and improving skin texture.

Both brands align with your preference for cruelty-free products and have options tailored to acne-prone skin.

Does Eveline Cosmetics have a spot treatment with salicylic acid?

Based on the information provided, Eveline Cosmetics offers a product containing salicylic acid, but it is not specifically marketed as a spot treatment. The product in question is the Clean Shot 10% Complex of AHA, BHA and PHA, which includes salicylic acid (BHA) as part of its formulation. However, this product is described as a gentle scrub designed for exfoliation rather than a targeted spot treatment.

If you're specifically looking for a spot treatment with salicylic acid, I would recommend checking Eveline Cosmetics' full range or reaching out to their customer service for more details on whether they offer such a product.

Ask your question here...