I'm trying to switch to cruelty-free skincare. Can you help me find an Asian brand that is 100% cruelty-free?

Certainly! Based on your preferences for an Asian cruelty-free skincare brand that avoids animal testing (animal_testing='no') and aligns with your values, here are some top recommendations:

1. SKIN1004

- Cruelty-Free Status: Verified cruelty-free by PETA's "Beauty Without Bunnies" program. SKIN1004 does not test finished products or ingredients on animals, nor does it allow third-party testing.
- Vegan-Friendly: SKIN1004 is 100% vegan, with no animal-derived ingredients in its formulations.
- Transparency: While the brand lacks Leaping Bunny certification (which requires annual recommitment and supply chain audits), it has strong ethical commitments to animal welfare and sustainability.

2. Beauty of Joseon

- Cruelty-Free Status: Verified cruelty-free by Cruelty-Free Kitty, confirming that neither Beauty of Joseon nor its suppliers conduct animal testing on finished products or ingredients.
- Vegan-Friendly Options: While the brand is not entirely vegan, it offers a selection of vegan-friendly products, such as the Relief Sun sunscreen and Glow Deep Serum.
- Transparency: Beauty of Joseon lacks certification from Leaping Bunny or PETA's "Beauty Without Bunnies" program, which would provide more rigorous third-party validation.

Both SKIN1004 and Beauty of Joseon are excellent choices for cruelty-free skincare. If you're looking for a brand with stronger third-party validation, SKIN1004 is the better option due to its PETA certification and 100% vegan formulations.

Are their products also vegan?

Yes, the products mentioned from both SKIN1004 and Beauty of Joseon are vegan. Here's a summary of their vegan-friendly products:

SKIN1004 Products:

- Madagascar Centella Light Cleansing Oil
 - Vegan formula with centella asiatica extract.
- Madagascar Centella Ampoule Foam
 - Vegan cream cleansing foam for sensitive skin.
- Madagascar Centella Hyalu-Cica Blue Serum
 - Vegan serum with hyaluronic acid and centella asiatica extract.

Beauty of Joseon Products:

- Ginseng Cleansing Oil
 - Vegan deep cleansing oil with 50% soya oil and ginseng seed oil.

All these products are cruelty-free, vegan, and free from animal-based ingredients, aligning perfectly with your preferences!
